

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

The Butterflies.
The breath of the roses is sweet—so sweet—
They drowse in the sun in their damask frocks;
The great day lilies drink in the heat
And nod to the crimson hollyhocks.
While drenched with their fragrance, and
stained with their dyes,
In and out go the butterflies.

They quiver and pulse o'er a chalice deep.
Do they catch a glimpse in a drop of dew
Of their velvet vests and the spangled sweep
Of wings, like a cloud with the sunset through?
Or is it their heart's desire they tell,
As they peer in that topaz wishing-well?
They are glad of the heat, they are glad of the light,
They are glad of the garden o'er which they glide;
There will come cold, and there will come night,
But with this their day they are satisfied!
The feast is spread, and the warm air stirs
With the rhythmic march of the banqueters!

So the world goes on in the summer noon.
As her whole path lay amid poppy-blows;
So the butterflies dance to a mystic tune,
In their gossamer Eden of green and rose.
Will there wait for the soul such an hour
As this
As she leaps alive from her chrysalis?
—Emma H. Weed, in Youth's Companion.

Mrs. Lee in Richmond.
Mrs. Fitzhugh Lee, Miss Virginia Lee and Captain Fitzhugh Lee, of the Seventh United States Cavalry, reached Richmond Tuesday evening, and are with Mr. and Mrs. James Caskie Cabell at No. 619 East Franklin Street.

Mrs. Lee, with her son and daughter, will be in Richmond for some time. At the expiration of their visit here they will leave for an extended trip to the Philippines, where Mrs. Rhen, Mrs. Brown and Lieutenant Mason, the other members of Mrs. Lee's family, will be during the autumn and winter.

Richmond is full of friends who will be pleased to have an opportunity of seeing Mrs. Lee, the young lady whose babyhood was associated with the Executive Mansion, when her gallant father was Governor of her native State, and the young United States army officer, who bears the name of Fitzhugh Lee.

Off for Lake Toxaway.
General and Mrs. William Ruffin Cox, who spent a few days at their summer residence, returning from a tour of Canada and visit to northern resorts, were entertained at luncheon Tuesday by Mr. and Mrs. James Alston Cabell.

They left Wednesday to be joined in North Carolina by Messrs. Herbert A. and Hamilton Claiborne, Albert and Francis Cox.

Miss Pitt Entertains.
The whole party will go to Lake Toxaway in the North Carolina sapphire country, near Asheville, to remain until some time in September.

Rosebud Garden of Girls.
Miss Dottie Bullard was the charming hostess of a juvenile social club at Radford, Va., called "The Rosebud Garden of Girls." The club members are also members of The Times-Dispatch Children's Club and are a highly intelligent and delightful group of young girls.

A full account of their entertainment and of a contest which followed it will appear on the children's page of The Times-Dispatch at a later date.

Engagement Announced.
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kimbrough Pendleton, of Ashland, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Washington, to Dr. Henry Rose Carter, the wedding to be celebrated in the early autumn.

Miss Pendleton, who is a lovely type of refined and cultivated Virginia womanhood, has scores of friends in Richmond, and belongs to the best of families.

Dr. Carter is son of the Hon. H. H. Carter, one of the most successful and influential members of the Richmond bar. Dr. Carter, who is now located at Ashland, served with distinction in the United States army, having been stationed at New Orleans, San Francisco, Portland, Vancouver, Burrhead and Alaska. He is a physician of unusual promise and ability. The wedding will be an event of unusual interest to a widely extended circle.

Personal Mention.
Mr. and Mrs. Otway Warwick and family leave for Massanutta Springs this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Starnard are at Hot Springs, Va.

Misses Nellie and Bessie Truett and Mrs. James T. Green and children, of Baltimore, Md., are the guests in Richmond of Mrs. O. T. Gilliam.

Mrs. Edgar Gunn and Misses Katharine and Harriet Gunn, who have been spending the last few weeks in Pennsylvania, are now at the Ocean Hotel at Ansbury Park. With them are the Misses Helen, of Lancaster, Pa.

Mrs. Fannie Parham Bouscasson and her son, Mr. Benjamin Parham Bouscasson, have been at Rawley Springs for a week, and will probably remain for some time.

Mr. W. L. Goodwyn, of No. 836 West Grace Street, who has been sick with the fever for the past several weeks at the home of his father, Judge C. F. Goodwyn, in Nettoway, left Monday, accompanied by his wife, for the Blue Ridge Springs. The many friends of Mr. Goodwyn will be glad to know that he is improving rapidly.

Miss Edna Vall Branch and her grandmother, Mrs. S. J. Cornell, who have been visiting in New Jersey and New York for the past month, are now visiting Mrs. Cornell's brother, Mr. Stephen Vall, of Hughsonville, N. Y.

Miss Alice Wood, a graduate in the class of 1905 at St. Joseph's Academy, has been spending six weeks in the Virginia mountains with Mrs. John Murphy, her sister. She is now with her parents in Washington, D. C., and will resume her musical studies in Richmond next September.

Colonel and Mrs. Dempsey, of this city, are at the Jordan cottage, Ocean View, on the Chesapeake Bay. Colonel Dempsey is State Inspector of militia.

Miss Katie Smith is visiting Miss Marie Morrisette in Portsmouth.

Dr. O. F. Blankinship, of No. 2715 East Broad Street, has returned home after a pleasant outing in Fluvanna county.

Mrs. O. F. Blankinship is visiting in Fluvanna county, and will return to her home at No. 2715 East Broad Street next Monday.

Miss Annie Lancaster, of Ashland, Va., is the guest of Mrs. Fleming Galois, of Henric.

THE SEA-LIMITS.

By DANTE GABRIEL ROSSETTI.

Some ardent admirers of Rossetti would place him at the head of all the Victorian poets. Advocates of Spenser would, of course, dispute that arrangement. Forging the majority of critics would limit their decision to a choice between Browning and Tennyson. Yet whatever position be assigned to Rossetti, his influence on English poetry is likely to increase, as is that of Matthew Arnold. To the change of obscurity often brought Rossetti, the following verses will supply almost a refutation. They are Emersonian in depth of perception, and emotional as Byron's, yet more simply and deftly Rossetti, and biographical sketch have already been printed in this series.

CONSIDER the sea's listless chime:

Time's self it is, made audible—

The murmur of the earth's own shell.

Secret continuance sublime

Is the sea's end: our sight may pass

No furlong further. Since time was,

This sound hath told the lapse of time.

No quiet, which is death's—it hath

The mournfulness of ancient life,

Enduring always at dull strife.

As the world's heart of rest and wrath,

Its painful pulse is in the sands.

Last utterly, the whole sky stands,

Gray and not known, along its path.

Listen alone beside the sea,

Listen alone among the woods;

Those voices of twin solitudes

Shall have one sound alike to thee:

Hark where the murmurs of thronged men

Surge and sink back and surge again—

Still the one voice of wave and tree.

Gather a shell from the strown beach

And listen at its lips: they sigh

The same desire and mystery.

The echo of the whole sea's speech.

And all mankind is thus at heart

Not anything but what thou art:

And Earth, Sea, Man, are all in each.
